not known where this agency will go now. The steamship business also goes with the amalgamation. Means More Economical Handling.

George R. Carter, of the Hawaiian Company, who is largely interested in the amalgamation, states that the object is to bring about a more economic handling of the affairs of both corporations, their interests being in most cases identical.

"Many of the plantation interests of Irwin & Co. and Brewer & Co. being contiguous and the corporation in-terests they represent being so allied, it was thought best to bring about an amalgamation of the two firms," said Mr. Carter yesterday, "thus making certain the harmony of interests in-volved, and more particularly as both Mr. Irwin and Mr. Giffard desired to retire from active business.

"The details of the amalgamation were largely left to negotiations on the part of Mr. Irwin and Mr. Bishop in San Francisco. The plan involves an increase of capital stock on the part of Brewer & Co. and the issuance of this stock for that of Irwin & Co. Both firms have been successfully managed in the past and the amalgamation is simply in the best interests of each."

Found Blade Dull.

Later he took out his pencil to sharpen it, and the edge on the knife proved, according to him, to be unsatproved, according to him, to be unsat-isfactory. He was at the time on Ala-kea street, near King, and g'neing up saw the sign of George W. Lin-coln. He walked in and had a finer edge put on, paid a dime, and went his way. So far his preparations for the assault had cost him thirty-five cents. He went back to the Judiciary building and spent a few moments in building and spent a few moments in the courtroom where the conspiracy trial was going on, and then went down-stairs to see Breckons and Marshal Hendry about bonds for Yokagawa, the editor of the Mani Shinbun, who was lately fined $100 in the federal court.

It was here that Sheba saw him when he went downstairs and left the building after being dismissed as a witness in the trial of Mori's friend. In the absence of conflict over Mori's actions of major importance, it is these little details that are commanding the greater attention during his trial. The substance of his testimony relating to subsequent events, with additional statements brought out by further questions and cross-examination, is as

Mori's Statement,

"I was coming Waikiki on King street on a Waikiki car, and at the corner of Nuuanu avenue and King street I decided to get off and see Saito, who was assisting me in get-ting bonds for Yokogawa. Saito works in Makino's drug store. I got off the ear on the makai side and walked around the back, Sheba was coming Ewa on the manka side of King street, and we met at the corner. Our meeting was accidental.

"We said 'Hello.' We spoke in Japanese, but the English equivalent is 'Hello.' We spoke about the higher wage business, as there was a great interest in the higher wage question at that time. I asked him:

"Don't you think the Japanese are doing right in asking for higher wage: ?" "He said, 'Yes, but they are not go-ing about it in the right way."
"We were at that time walking Ewa on King street, and then towards the Hamano store. I think I ought to know about the higher wage question, because I was a delegate from Wai-luku to the conference.

"We were walking mauka on Smith street, about ten or twenty steps from King, when Sheba said, 'You are a young man and don't know about this business. You come up to my office and I'll tell you more about it. If you can convince me that I am wrong, I'll put it in my paper.'

were made on him. It is at this point today to pay a visit to the Pahoa mill. where Mori's story conflicts, as at another time he stated that he had seized the editor by the left arm.) Struck Blindly. Continuing, Mori said, him. I did not intend to strike any particular part of his body but hit him on the top of the head. I struck blindly and did not know where I was hitting. Then we fell to the ground. I was below Sheba. A white man came running up and seized my hand and told me to drop the knife. I opened my hand and it fell to the side-walk. Another man held my head and another separated us."

The rest of his testimony related to his subsequent damaging statements at the police station, which were not disproved to any extent. The cross-ex-amination by Catheart did not tend to bring out any further facts overlooked in direct, but merely emphasized certain parts of his previous statements. The prosecution attempted to impeach him on several points and might yet speceed.

Is Responsible.

The witnesses placed on the stand by the prosecution in the morning to complete its case were Ozawa, a Japanese interpreter, and Dr. Sinelair, their testimony being mainly corroborative. Sin-clair testified to having examined the defendant when he was fist brought to the police station and after he had made the statements about wanting to pat Sheba out of the way and pro-nounced him to have been perfectly sane, cool and responsible. Noisy Traffic.

During the proceedings yesterday Judge De Bolt asked the attorneys in the case to cooperate with him having Mililani street, at the pl where it passes the Judiciary building, closed up as the passing of the heavy teams disturbs both his court and that of Judge Whitney.
